MARKET BASICS

WHAT IS FOREX?

Forex — short for foreign exchange — is the global marketplace where one currency is exchanged for another.

- Every forex trade exchanges one currency for another at a quoted rate.
- The market operates 24 hours a day, five days a week, moving through the world's major financial centres.
- Currencies are traded in pairs — the first currency is the base, the second is the quote.
- EUR/USD shows how many US dollars one euro buys. It is the most traded currency pair in the world.

MARKET EXPERTISE

OUR MARKET EXPERTISE

Six asset classes, covered with the same discipline — clear pricing, professional tools and market insight on every platform.

01 Forex

The world's most traded market. Deep liquidity and continuous sessions across time zones make major, minor and exotic currency pairs the core of daily trading activity.

02 Shares

Share CFDs connect traders to the performance of well-known global companies, from technology leaders to established industrials, alongside the broader market moves that drive them.

03 Indices

Index CFDs take a wider view of an entire market, tracking a basket of leading companies in a single instrument — without the need to select individual stocks.

04 Commodities

Energy and agricultural products link trading portfolios to the physical global economy. Crude oil and natural gas remain among the most actively traded instruments in the world.

05 Cryptocurrencies

Digital assets trade around the clock and can show pronounced intraday moves, driven by news flow and shifting sentiment — a market suited to traders who monitor positions closely.

06 Metals

Gold and silver are established stores of value and popular instruments for portfolio diversification, quoted against the US dollar with pricing that reflects global demand.

FUNDAMENTALS

WHAT ARE INVESTMENT ASSETS?

Investment assets are financial or tangible resources held because they may preserve value, generate income or change in value over time.

On a trading platform, those assets range from currencies and shares to commodities and metals. Each one behaves differently — its own rhythm, its own risks, its own role in a portfolio.

Before taking a position, experienced traders weigh four practical factors that shape every decision — whatever the instrument and whatever the market conditions.

FOUR FACTORS BEHIND EVERY DECISION

Liquidity

How easily the asset can be bought or sold close to its current price.

Volatility

How sharply its price can move over short periods of time.

Time Horizon

How long a position is expected to be held before it is closed.

Risk

How much capital is exposed if the market moves against the position.

BEFORE YOU TRADE

Understand the product, pricing model and downside risk before taking a position.
